

Maybe parents should start doing their jobs instead of leaving it up to the networks to police themselves. I pay for cable (a lot) and if I want to watch violent programs that should be my right. it's not fair to punish people like Howard Stern when it's the lazyness of parents that is to blame. I watched plenty of violent programs as a child and I turned out fine, President of my High School class, Captain of the Basketball Team, and I even graduated from Wake Forest. Violent programming did not hurt me one bit. Also, why is nothing being done about the lies being spewed on the Fox News Channel? I would be more worried about my child being exposed to Sean Hannity or Bill O'Reilly, than I would to a television show with guns or violence, because they know one is fake and they should know FOX is as well.
